The District is continuing to engage in discussions with the United States Environmental Protection Agency (“USEPA”) and the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (“Illinois EPA”) concerning technical studies at issue in this proceeding, as follows:

The District’s consultants completed additional evaluation of related literature and toxicity studies, as requested by USEPA, and submitted a draft written report to USEPA. USEPA provided additional comments on the draft report, and those were addressed in subsequent telephone conferences. Most recently, on April 12, 2016, the District forwarded to both USEPA and Illinois EPA a final draft of the report entitled, “A review of water quality factors that affect nickel bioavailability to aquatic organisms: Refinement of the Biotic Ligand Model for Nickel in acute and chronic exposures.” On June 6, 2016, the parties held a conference call to review and discuss USEPA’s comments on the final draft report, and USEPA and the District’s consultant planned to continue reviewing the final draft report together in detail.

In addition, the District continued its discussions with USEPA and Illinois EPA regarding approval of the District’s proposed testing protocol. Initial testing began in March 2015, and a plan for further testing was discussed on several occasions, including most recently in October 2015. After conceptual agreement was reached on the toxicity testing protocol, the testing was completed by the Oregon State University (“OSU”) testing laboratory in December 2015. OSU prepared a report entitled “Progress Report – Nickel WER Project, which was forwarded to both USEPA and Illinois EPA on April 12, 2016. Most recently, during a call with Illinois EPA and USEPA on May 19, 2016, the District discussed OSU's testing completed in December 2015, OSU's Progress Report, and USEPA's comments on same. OSU and the District's consultant are now working on addressing USEPA's comments.

The District will commit to the filing of additional status report(s), as requested by the Hearing Officer.
