Indeed, you are correct. I cannot explain the errors. I will add the following corrections to the upcoming R19-14 NAAQS update for the second half of 2018:

Section 243.126 Lead

- a) 1978 Primary and Secondary Quarterly Average NAAQS for Lead
BOARD NOTE: This subsection (a) is derived from 40 CFR 50.12. USEPA designated Granite City as nonattainment with the 2008 primary and secondary three-month average NAAQS for lead effective December 31, ~~2010-2011~~ and an area of Chicago effective December 31, ~~2011-2012~~. See 76 Fed. Reg. 72097, 79108 (Nov. 22, 2011); 75 Fed Reg. 71033, 71042 (Nov. 22, 2010). Thus, this subsection (a) was obsolete on December 31, 2012, and the Board removed it.
- b) 2008 Primary and Secondary Three-Month Average NAAQS for Lead
- 1) The 2008 primary and secondary three-month average NAAQS for lead and its compounds is  $0.15 \mu\text{g}/\text{m}^3$ , arithmetic mean concentration over a three-month period, measured in the ambient air as lead by either of the following:
- A) An FRM based on appendix G of 40 CFR 50, incorporated by reference in Section 243.108, and designated by USEPA and listed in the List of Designated Methods, incorporated by reference in Section 243.108; or
- B) An FEM designated by USEPA and listed in the List of Designated Methods, incorporated by reference in Section 243.108.
- 2) The 2008 primary and secondary three-month average NAAQS for lead are met when the maximum arithmetic three-month mean concentration for a three-year period, as determined in accordance with appendix R of 40 CFR 50, incorporated by reference in Section 243.108, is less than or equal to  $0.15 \mu\text{g}/\text{m}^3$ .

BOARD NOTE: This subsection (b) is derived from 40 CFR 50.16.

Subject: R19-6 Identical in Substance Rulemaking

Hello Mike,

In going over the Board's final order of February 14, 2019, adopting the identical in substance National Ambient Air Quality Standards rulemaking R19-6, I found what appears to be an error in the Board Note for Section 243.126. The effective date of the nonattainment designation for Granite city was December 31, 2010, and the effective date of the nonattainment designation for an area of Chicago was December 31, 2011. The dates listed in the rule language recently adopted by the Board are each off by one year, though the date of obsolescence for the 1978 standard is correct. The two effective dates for the nonattainment designations should be corrected, if possible.

Thank you,

Annet Godiksen
