DISSENTING OPINION (by J. Theodore Meyer):

I dissent from the majority's acceptance of the settlement stipulation in this case.

Neither the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (Agency) nor the Attorney General have articulated any standards as to what factors should be considered when negotiating a fine to be imposed pursuant to a settlement agreement. Additionally, although the proposed settlement agreement states that F & F Laboratories' noncompliance was economically beneficial in that it avoided the costs of preparing permit applications and operated one baking line and incinerator without the delay of applying to and waiting for the Agency to issue permits, there is not any specific information on the amount of that economic benefit. Section 33(c) of the Environmental Protection Act specifically requires the Board to consider any economic benefits accrued by noncompliance. I believe that this provision contemplates a consideration of the amount of the economic benefit, not just a statement that an economic benefit was realized. Without more specific information, it is impossible to know if the penalty of $1,000 even comes close to the savings realized by F & F Laboratories.

Finally, I am frustrated that, although this case was brought in the name of the people of the State of Illinois, there is no recognition that costs and fees could have been assessed against F & F Laboratories. Ill.Rev.Stat.1989, ch. 111 1/2, par. 1042(f). I am pleased that the Attorney General is beginning to bring enforcement cases in the name of the People, but I believe that settlement agreements in such cases should, at a minimum, recognize that the Board could award costs and reasonable fees.

For these reasons, I dissent.
