This is the classic kicking the can down the road syndrome. When will it end? We all know that coal is one of the worst air polluters out there.

As one who has had to cope with asthma all my life, it's frightening to have to struggle to breathe. We must clean up the air for all of us: young and old alike.

Dear Illinois Pollution Control Board,

If human society is going to survive the stresses of major climate change, we are going to have to roll up our sleeves and get to work on it, just as we would if we were invaded by hostile armies. And corporations are going to have to do their fair share, and make sacrifices just like real people have to do. Over the years, companies have actually benefited when they have had to comply with higher guidelines for energy efficiency, pollution prevention, and other such standards of good corporate behavior. So please don't let Illinois coal plants do the corporate equivalent of farting at the dinner party and spitting in the soup tureen. Don't give Illinois coal plants a free pass to pollute.
