Subject: Illinois Control Board- Revisit a ruling on groundwater protection

STATE OF ILLINOIS
Pollution Control Board

PC# 65
R12-9(B)

The Tribune newspaper had an editorial on Sunday about the Illinois Pollution Control Board and the fact that they were meeting today to revisit a ruling on groundwater protection at certain dump sites.

The board had previously decided not to require quarries to install groundwater monitoring wells on their property to check for contamination.

I agree with the Tribune that groundwater monitoring should be required. Standards should be raised. The issue is particularly important in the suburbs (Will County) where residents who live near quarries rely on public water.

Please share these comments with the Board. They should make a decision that protects the residents of Illinois.

Sincerely,

Dorothy Hynous
