History: This message has been replied to

If I get your reference Joe, isn't the lyric "What's the frequency, Kenneth?" The question was being asked by a crazy man to Dan Rather. But enough of silly pop culture.

The secondary ash basin, to my knowledge, has never been dredged. We were going to do it the first time this summer to repair the liner.

The bypass basin and ash basin are done every 6 to 8 years depending on budget.

I would like to repair ripped liners in the metal cleaning basin later this summer. What constitutes a repair? Can I replace most of the liner with the design we were going to go with? What is allowed without the permit?

Thank you,
